DEAN MUILENBURG SEES ADVANCES IN EDUCATION METHOD

Describes Changes in Curricula and Purposes

LAUDS NEW INTEREST Says Division of College Career Vindicated in Trials

Dean James Muilenburg of the College of Arts and Sciences has an article entitled "College Education on the Wing" published in the February issue of the Maine Alumnus.

In the article, the Dean described some of the changes which have been made recently in the curricula and purposes of the College. He says:

"The change to a new curriculum, which divided the student's college career into a period of exploration and a period of concentration, has been more than vindicated by developments in the State of Maine and in the country at large. As time goes on, it is likely that this division will grow sharper, and that the number of students who come for two years only will greatly increase. The curriculum of the first two years has grown increasingly flexible, so that it is now possible to relate a student's academic program directly to his own peculiar situation and needs."

Dean Muilenburg commented favorably on the new student alertness and eagerness and respect for intelligence now being demonstrated in such groups as the Post Prandial Club and the Contributors' Club.

The musical programs sponsored by Donald Stewart, the informal acquaintanceship being developed between students and faculty members, the vitality of classroom discussions and themes, the interest in metropolitan newspapers, the higher order of student contributions in the Campus, and the Maine college forum, all met the Dean's hearty approval.

Former Campus Society Editor Has Been Outstanding Student Here

Miss Anne Eliasson, a member of the junior class and an outstanding student, left recently for the Merrill-Palmer School in Detroit, Michigan, where she will study child development and training for one semester. Miss Eliasson has been active in extra-curricular activities as well as in the classroom. She held memberships in several honorary scholastic organizations and was society editor of the Maine Campus. She was a member of Alpha Omicron Pi social sorority. Classmates and sorority sisters gave Miss Eliasson several farewell parties a short time before her departure for Detroit.

DEBATING SOCIETY HAS DISCUSSION CONCERNING SHIPMENT OF ARMS IN WAR

Members of the Debating Society itself were the speakers at the last meeting of that organization, held last Tuesday in North Stevens, at which the question of the advisability of prohibiting the international shipment of arms was considered.

Chester Smith, Richard Briggs, and Spurgeon Benjamin were the speakers. Their five minute talks were followed by a long discussion, in which it was apparent that the consensus of opinion was that the prohibition of international arms shipments was inadvisable, as being likely to result in the oppression of small nations.

PAINTING EXHIBIT OF A. S. BAYLINSON SHOWN IN LIBRARY

Modern Collection To Be Displayed for Another Week

A group of paintings and drawings by A. S. Baylinson will be exhibited in the lecture room of the University Library from February 4 to February 16, according to an announcement by Professor J. H. Huddilston. The exhibit will be shown through the cooperation of the College Art association and is the first of its kind to be sent to this part of the State of Maine. It is expected that those visiting the exhibit will be aided in grasping modern art tendencies.

Born in Moscow in 1882, Baylinson came to the United States at the age of eight, and studied with Robert Henri and Homer Boss. His paintings have become very favorably known for their rich somber color, striking design, and their curious arrangements and juxtaposition of objects.

Baylinson was an art instructor at the Art Students League for two years. He is now supervisor of the painting of the Art Teaching project under the works division of the Emergency Relief Bureau.

Parties, Dances, and Smokers Usher In Annual Fraternity Rushing Period

Monday night saw the entrance of the annual rushing season here at Maine when five fraternities, S.A.E., Sigma Chi, Kappa Sigma, Tau Epsilon Phi, and Delta Tau Delta held smokers for the freshmen and thereby took the initial step which declared an open season on yearlings. Two, three, and even four year olds are also eligible during this season, and the past has shown that even they possess no immunity against a well concentrated rush.

For the next three weeks, until Tuesday, February 26, at 5:00 p.m. pep talks, and arguments that would shame the best debaters will be used to convince the freshmen that "he can't go wrong." In addition, smokers, movies, vic parties, and house parties will be given in his honor. The frosh comes into his own for three short weeks.

Peace Sentiment Seen Here in Results Of Voting

450 STUDENTS VOTE

Majority Would Not Fight If United States Were Invader

Second returns in the 325,000 ballot peace poll of undergraduates in 119 leading colleges and universities in the United States and Canada have been released by the Literary Digest. The students were asked to express their opinion in this college peace poll on seven issues relating to war and peace. The University of Maine, through the Maine Campus, was entered in the Poll, and the results of the voting indicate that there is considerable pacific sentiment here at the University.

The results for Maine were as follows: On the question as to whether or not the United States could stay out of another great war, 229 answered yes, 216 said no. Asked if they would fight if the United States were invaded, 388 said yes, 53 said no. Asked if they would fight if the United States were the invader, 96 said yes, and 329 said no. Asked whether a national policy of a navy and air force second to none is a sound method of insuring us against being drawn into another great war, 224 said yes, while 219 said no. 406 advocated the government control of armament and munitions industries, while 42 were opposed to it.

On the question: In alignment with our historic procedure in drafting man power in time of war, would you advocate the principle of universal conscription of all resources of capital and labor in order to control all profits in time of war? 380 voted yes and 64 voted no. 172 favored the entrance of the United States into the League of Nations, while 270 looked on it with disfavor.

Maine voted on two questions, the one concerning our having a navy and air force second to none as a guarantee of peace and the one concerning our entry into the League, opposite to the total vote of all the colleges participating.

What Fraternity?

With the opening Monday of the fraternity rushing period, approximately four hundred University of Maine freshmen reached one of the critical points in their first year of college life.

What fraternity shall I join? each freshman asks himself, and it is a question which can not be satisfactorily answered by anyone but himself.

Practical fraternity life has its drawbacks as well as its advantages. There are forced intimacies with a few persons with whom one would, perhaps, not ordinarily care to associate. There are times when it is impossible to study. There are stupidly misdirected Hell Weeks. There are, though most fraternity men will deny it, undercurrents of ill feeling between various houses. There is the question of added expenses. And worst of all is the narrowing of one's viewpoint inevitably brought about by continued association with persons whose mental processes, tastes, and thoughts all lie in the same plane.

Idealistic fraternity life would contain none of the above mentioned drawbacks. It would probably do more for one in development of character and esprit de corps than four years of college studies.

No one fraternity here at Maine has all the drawbacks mentioned above; some here approach to some extent the ideal fraternity, and can offer a great deal to a freshman.

The only impartial advice, then, which can be offered to freshmen is to try to select a fraternity which in one's opinion comes closest to the ideal; join it with the idea of trying to help raise its standards.

Do not join a fraternity merely because it has more M men than any other group on campus, or because it has a nice looking house; remember that when you start living in the house that the seniors will have graduated, and that it will be your own classmates with whom you will live for three years.

The Interfrat Council

On the verge of passing certain important legislation which, it seems probable, would have done away with at least one of the predominant evils of the present rushing system, the Interfraternity Council characteristically "changed its mind" at its last meeting and retained the system used last year.

At a previous meeting, members of the Council regarded favorably a plan to have a period of approximately a week between the end of rushing and the pledging date. During that period, fraternities and freshmen would have turned in slips indicating their respective choices to authorities, and by checking the lists against each other, pledging would result.

It would seem that the plan would have done away with the "high pressure" last-minute tactics employed by some fraternities in which some freshmen are bulldozed into

THEATRE TALK

By Martin Scrivener

There seems to be a new star on the theatrical horizon. Fortunately for America, or unfortunately, as you may choose to think, she is Miss Elizabeth Bergner. Percy Hammond in last Sunday's Herald Tribune made a summary of what some of the Broadway critics think about her performance in "Escape Me Never," and these killers of the drama, so-called, like her and apparently do not hesitate to give credit when they think credit is due. Some of the opinions are: "fiery, magnificent, great, incomparable, poignant, haunting, gifted, captivating, and fascinating." All of this praise came from men who are all too frequently considered to be detrimental to the welfare of the drama. They are despised, oftentimes feared, and seldom respected, but whether you agree with that or not, it brings me partially to the point I wish to make.

That point is that the writer of this column has apparently caused rather a disturbance in the local theatrical circle at one time or another. I don't mean that he has become tremendously influential or that he is recognized as anything but a tiresome meddler, but some few people have noticed him, and those people have adopted quite the same pledging.

It seems regrettable that Council representatives cannot forget once in a while their own selfish motives to act for the general good.

attitude as those who think that the professional critics are dangerous. Almost everything of a theatrical nature that has proved unpopular has been blamed on him. He has been accused of attempting to select the cast for the Masque plays. He was condemned for writing a news item in the Campus which he didn't write at all, but which in reality was contributed by one of the staff reporters who has no particular connection or interest in the drama. He has never been associated with the editorial column, but much adverse criticism was given him because of something that appeared therein. He was unmercifully lashed because he failed to appreciate some of the interpretations that certain characters in Masque plays gave; the same people who felt this way toward him silently and secretly agreed with him, but very gallantly they didn't want to hurt the feelings of the temperamental actors, so they said nothing.

He has even been accused of being completely ignorant of the drama, which in itself may be true, but even the famous George Jean Nathan has had the same thing said of him. In spite of all things that have been thought and said about him, if he has created the least bit of interest in the local theatrical group he will feel that his attempt has been successful, and that in a small way he has done something to carry on the glorious tradition of the stage.

This might be a farewell column by all the apparent sentiment, but really it isn't intended to be. Next week if all goes along as scheduled I will have something to write about Saint Joan. As has been the case in the past, some of it will probably prove somewhat unpopular, but as has been the case in the past, it will be written.

Granville Wilcox '36 was elected president of Phi Eta Kappa fraternity Monday evening, February 4.

Editor, the Maine Campus,
Orono, Maine

Dear Sir:

Now that registration and a new term are upon us, I wish someone could explain to me any logical reason for a minimum hours requirement.

When you take a poor boob of a goopie like myself and say: "Now, Johnny, you can't take less than 14 credit hours or you might have time to read a newspaper or even a cheap novel or play a game of tennis," it is really a shame. For after all, while I am a serious student, there is nothing dearer to my heart than my daily paper. And if it is intelligently read there is no reason why it would not be just as educational or even more educational than those two or three credit hours.

There are other things that could be done with a few hours off. I should be able to earn all of my expenses if I could have a little more time. As it is, unless I should fall into clover (something highly improbable), I shall not be able to return to this ducky University next year for lack of funds.

While we are removing the minimum hours requirement we might just as well dock off the maximum hours requirement, and give a break to those fellows who have the ability to squeeze in that extra hour or two that will make all the difference between summer study and a suspended degree or no degree at all. Or what would be even more remarkable, it might give some exceptional guy the chance to skip through in three years instead of four; or to take a few courses that he really would like to take instead of so much major subject bunk. But why a major subject anyhow? Well, I'll speak about that next week or the week after or better yet not at all.

If we knocked off the minimum hour requirement, wouldn't we attract a group of more mature or less fortunate students who would otherwise have little chance for a formal education? Don't you think they are a desirable group? I do. The University would be, for them, much

AT TRYING TIMES....TRY A Smooth OLD GOLD

By Ray Gailey

Dear Readers, the Sport Spiels this week are being turned out by a new writer who wishes to absolve scribe Levenson of all unfavorable criticism which this copy might incur. And as this is my first try at columning in this line, I wish to ask your indulgence in foisting on you such inane and garbled writing as comes trickling off the battered keys of my more battered portable "flying machine." The writer fully realizes that he is far from being a Grantland Rice or a Damon Runyon, or ever can hope to be, but as the hardboiled editor of this newsheet requested a few lines of sport copy and to "make it snappy," the writer could do nothing but comply for fear of losing his daily hamburger. We hope that you will overlook the writer's inadequacies until a better vehicle of sportdom topics can be found.

A situation of current interest that is causing considerable comment pro and con in athletic circles at Maine and in the various sport columns of dailies throughout the state is the search being made by the Bowdoin athletic board for a new football coach. Frequent mention of our own gridiron mentor, "Foxy Fred" Brice, as a possible candidate for the position has been made. And why not? Coach Brice has certainly hung up an enviable record while at Maine, particularly in regard to state series contests. In the past 13 years that Brice has guided the destinies of the Bruin eleven, the Pale Blue of the University of Maine has been the dominant hue in the spectrum of Maine college colors. The Brice-coached team has lost but six state games and tied two in 13 years, running up a one-sided total of 619 points to their opponents' 164. This record, and the fine showing that Maine elevens have made against Yale, Holy Cross, and Dartmouth teams, has brought to Brice favorable mention from writers and coaches throughout the East.

Furthermore, Coach Brice was the first coach in the State of Maine to introduce into Maine collegiate football the use of the huddle system, spinners, and the extensive use of lateral passes, features which caused the Pale Blue's opponents no end of trouble and the Pale Blue's supporters no end of glee.

It is a well known fact that Malcolm Morrill, Athletic Director at Bowdoin, and Coach Brice are on the best of terms and that Morrill has great respect for Brice's coaching ability. But to date, because of the athletic situation at Bowdoin, nothing has been done by the authorities towards hiring a new coach. No overtures have been made to Brice nor to any other possible candidate and will not be until the situation has cleared up. Consequently all mention of Brice as possible football mentor at Bowdoin is unofficial and was started by Alumni of either Maine or Bowdoin, or both, and by sports writers and football fans interested in Maine intercollegiate football.

The rumors that were started were based entirely on Brice's splendid record and on the well-known fact that Bowdoin's past grid mentor, Charlie Bowser, received a princely stipend for his duties in comparison with that received by Brice or the Bates and Colby coaches and the salary rates favorably with the salary paid to college coaches of more or less professional teams. Should Brice receive an offer from Bowdoin or any other college, the writer hopes that his associations and friendships formed during his fourteen years at Maine will prove to be the "tie that binds."

MANY FRESHMEN ATTEND S.A.E. HOUSE SMOKER

A smoker was held at the S.A.E. house Monday evening with about 50 freshmen present. During the evening Ted Curtis showed movies of various college athletic events, including the Bates-Maine game of last fall, the Winter Carnival of 1934, and other track and football pictures.

Ping-pong and bridge were played during the evening. Refreshments of punch, doughnuts, mints, and cigarettes were served during the evening. Cornob pipes with the initials SAE were much in use during the evening.

FROSH HOOPSTERS DEFEAT BIG GREEN

By just staving off a last minute rally, the frosh A hoop team continued its victory march by turning back a strong Hebron Academy quintet 36-35 in the Memorial Gymnasium Tuesday night.

After getting two points behind at the end of the first canto, the yearlings clinched their third straight game by tying the score at the half-way mark and then swept aside all opposition in the third period to run up an 11 point lead.

The Preppers made their strongest bid of the evening in the final canto when they piled up 14 points to the freshmen's four, due principally to the accurate longshots made by Elliott and Davis. The final gun ended the desperate rally and gave the game to the frosh 35-36.

Van Gundy starred for the first-year men in goal-getting, scoring all 16 points made by the frosh in the first half. In the second half with Van Gundy bottled up, Rogers broke through the Hebron defense to sink six field goals and one foul basket. The fine defensive work of Lees was outstanding.
